

User flow

I have developed a Flow chart outlining the path a user takes to achieve his goal. Using this tool, I was able to identify areas where the user may abandon the application without achieving his goal and improve it, so he can reach this goal in the future

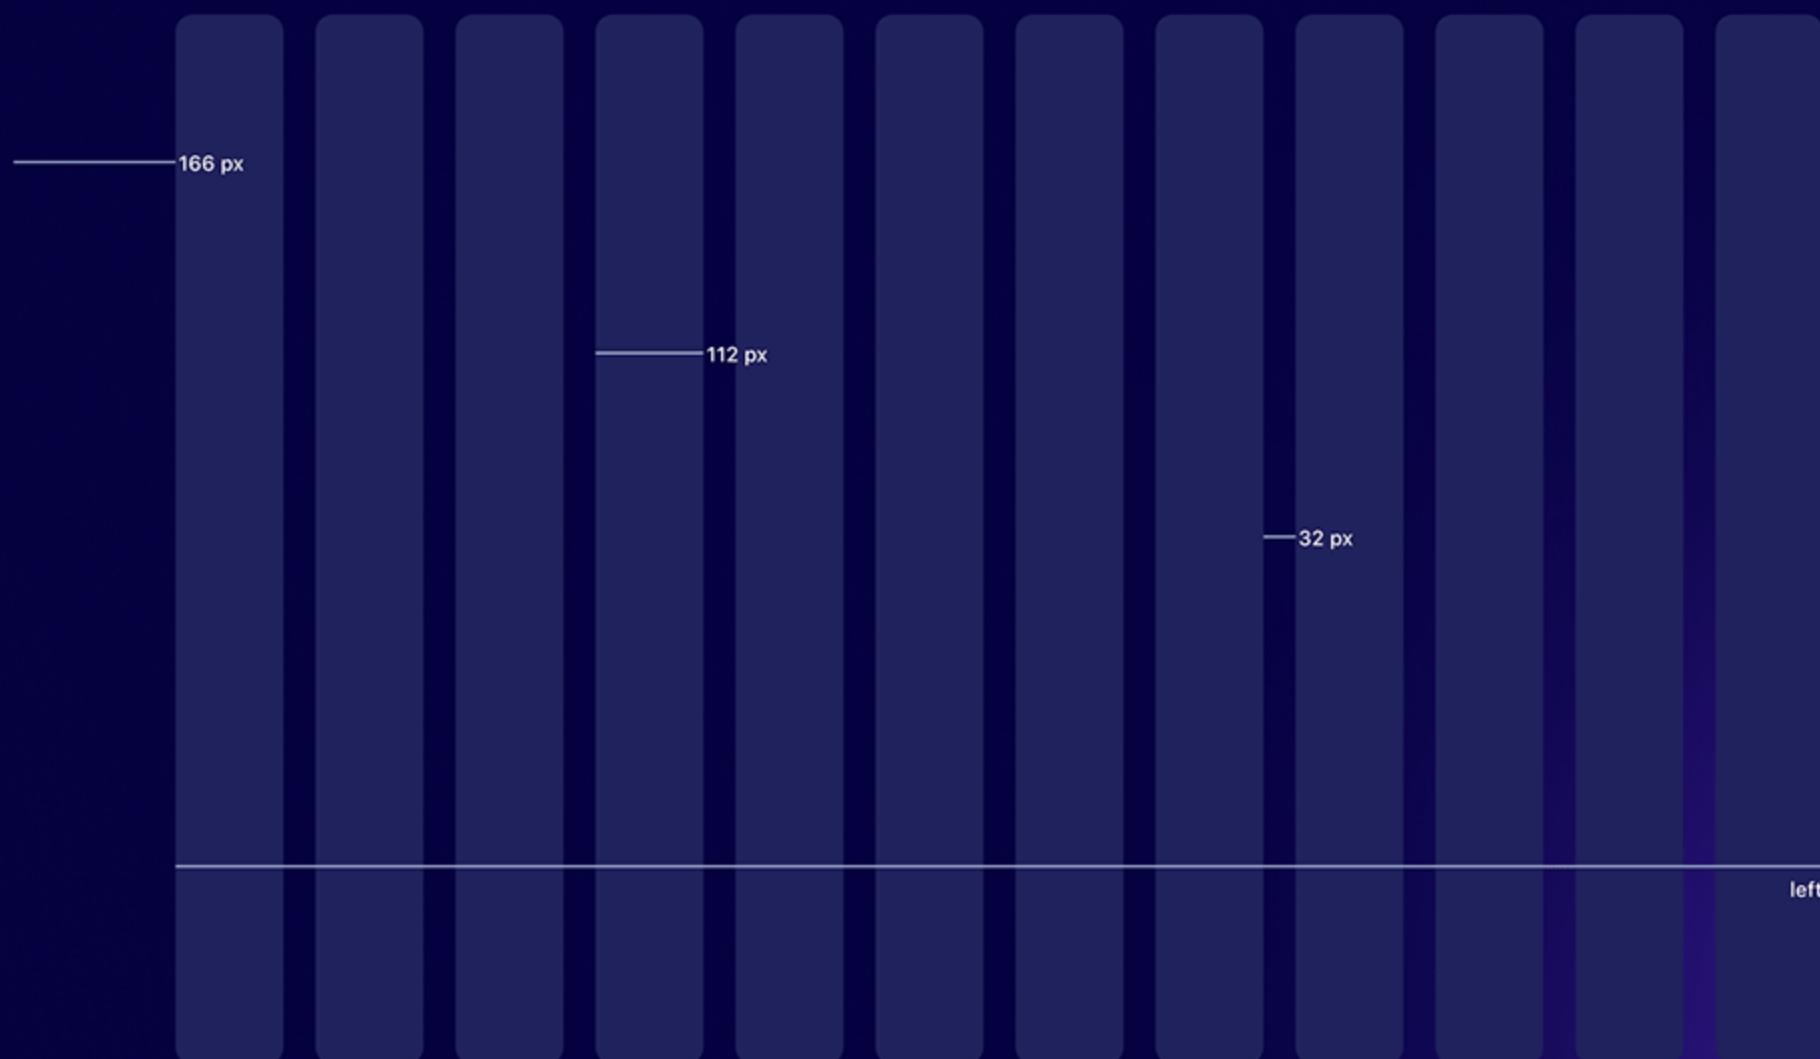

Grid for mobile

The grid was created according to the recommendations of the Human Interface Guidelines. Margin 16 pixels, 2 columns, gutter 16 pixels, grid type: stretch

Grid for desktop

Alignment allows for the creation of a harmonious and balanced design. Width 112 pixels, 12 columns, gutter 132 pixels, offset 116 pixels, grid type: left

Wireframes

During the process, I identified the information that would be included in the application and its scope. Also, I designed information blocks and principles for organizing it
